

To Whom It May Concern:

Alexis Abruzzo was the Operations Manager throughout the time of my employment at Synergy Physical Therapy & Sports Medicine, LLC., in which I was a part of the administrative team starting July 5, 2022. By the time I had the opportunity to become a part of the team, Alexis was approaching her tenth year of employment at the facility. She had initially started at an entry level position on the clinical team as a Rehab Tech before eventually transitioning into administration, in which she earned multiple promotions that ultimately resulted in the highest administrative role of an employee at the clinic.

Alexis is a bright and personable individual that inspires greatness. She is extremely self-motivated and holds herself to a high professional standard. She is meticulous and organized with her work, being mindful of any deadlines. Her ability to achieve any goal she may have set for herself, is clear to anyone by simply looking at her work history. It is proof of her resilience and eagerness to always strive for more than the bare minimum. In her leadership role, Alexis was exemplary. She never failed to be anything other than supportive and loyal to her team, and her actions consistently showed how much she cared for the clinic as a whole and its success.

Alexis Abruzzo is genuinely an asset to any company that she works for and is highly respectable as an individual. I hope that you take Alexis into consideration for the Data Analyst/Scientist position with your company and am excited for the opportunity you may have to see the wonderful contributions she has to offer.

Sincerely,
Erika Battise
